

Confronting Racial Injustice

JUNE 9, 2021 6 to 7 PM

The Charles Stuart Story: White Lies and Black Lives

Charles Stuart, a white man, murdered his wife and unborn child in Boston in 1989 and falsely blamed the attack on a nonexistent Black man. Believing Stuart's lie, the police engaged in a massive manhunt that terrorized a Black community in Mission Hill with detention, public strip-searches, and the arrest of two innocent men. As some lawmakers demanded the death penalty, the media perpetuated this false story. The Stuart case exemplifies how the narrative of white supremacy continues to lead to the dehumanization and devaluation of Black lives. Widespread acceptance of white lies over Black lives persists today.

SPEAKERS

ANGELA ONWUACHI-WILLIG, Dean,
Boston University School of Law

HON. LESLIE HARRIS (RET.), Suffolk Juvenile Court

RENÉE GRAHAM, Columnist, The Boston Globe

MODERATOR

KIM McLAURIN, Associate Dean,
Suffolk University Law School

Massachusetts
Historical Society
Founded 1791

NORTHEASTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW
CRIMINAL JUSTICE
TASK FORCE

N Northeastern University
School of Law

REGISTER
NOW!

Developed by the Northeastern University School of Law Criminal Justice Task Force, Confronting Racial Injustice is a free, five-part series hosted by the Massachusetts Historical Society and sponsored by a number of Boston-area organizations.

FOR THE FULL LIST OF PANEL DISCUSSIONS AND SPONSORS OR TO REGISTER, VISIT masshist.org/confronting-racial-injustice.