

The Daynard Public Interest Law Fellows Program

brings distinguished public interest practitioners to campus each academic year for a three-day visit. The fellows serve as role models for students, demonstrating how legal skills can be used effectively and creatively to make the world a better place. This vibrant program was established in 2004 through the generosity of Professor Richard A. Daynard, president of the law school's Public Health Advocacy Institute, and his wife, Carol Iskols Daynard.

Northeastern University School of Law

Movement Lawyering: Lessons in Navigating
and Building Power

Christian Snow '18 is the executive director of Law for Black Lives (L4BL), a Black femme-led organization dedicated to transforming the legal field by cultivating a national community of radical law students, lawyers and legal workers dedicated to movement lawyering; building the power of local organizing to defend, protect and advance Black Liberation; and transforming the law to change the conditions of the struggle and defend Black Lives. Before joining L4BL, Snow was a program director at the Illinois Justice Project, the executive director of Assata's Daughters and a staff attorney at the People's Law Office. Across these roles, Snow has focused on ending criminalization, challenging police brutality, advancing juvenile justice and organizing in line with the Black Radical Tradition.
