Doe/Moe/Jones v. Bondi: A Case Study

Jennifer Levi and Dee Farmer will discuss three consolidated cases filed for incarcerated transgender women facing transfer to men's facilities—challenging the federal "Gender Ideology" executive order and its prison rollout. Farmer, a trailblazing transgender rights advocate whose landmark prison case reached the Supreme Court and helped establish prison officials' duty to protect people from known risks of sexual violence, offers unmatched context.

Co-sponsored by the Center for Public
Interest Advocacy and Collaboration

The Daynard Public Interest Law Fellows Program brings distinguished public interest practitioners to campus each academic year. The fellows serve as role models for students, demonstrating how legal skills can be used effectively and creatively to make the world a better place. This vibrant program was established in 2004 through the generosity of Professor Richard A. Daynard, president of the law school's Public Health Advocacy Institute, and his wife, Carol Iskols Daynard.
